GDPR READINESS ASSESSMENT
EVALUATE YOUR COMPLIANCE EFFORTS

The passing of the new European Union (EU) data protection framework—the General Data Protection Regulation, or GDPR— represents a landmark change in the global data protection space. Through the GDPR, the EU is giving its citizens more control over how their personal data is used, and providing businesses with a clearer legal structure by standardizing data protection law. GDPR requirements such as the "right to be forgotten" and 72-hour breach notification are having a tremendous impact on enterprises that collect data on Europeans, and the May 25, 2018 compliance deadline is upon us.

With maximum fines of €20 million ($25 million) or 4 percent of annual sales, the stakes are high for organizations subject to the directive. The Sirius GDPR Readiness Assessment helps organizations determine the current state of capabilities required for compliance, and then identify, assign and track open items all the way through to remediation.

OUR APPROACH

Our expert consultants leverage GDPR and privacy management software designed specifically for assessing compliance with GDPR and other regulatory requirements. We prepare questions customized for your organization, and develop a survey that will help to identify gaps in your security program as it relates to GDPR.

After completing the survey, follow up interviews are conducted as necessary, and open items are assigned. Survey results are analyzed and presented for review, and the data is downloaded in CSV format for analysis or subsequent reloading into the tool.
